Director Todd Haynes [11]' unconventional biopic of the legendary singer/songwriter Bob Dylan features different actors playing the part of the Minnesota native at various stages of his remarkable career. Among the actors playing the singer are Cate Blanchett [12], who portrays the man during his Don't Look Back era incarnation; Heath Ledger [13], as an actor playing one of the fictional Dylans in a movie within the movie; Christian Bale [14], as the Dylan beginning to chafe at being associated so strongly with political causes; Richard Gere [15], portraying the post-motorcycle accident period; and Marcus Carl Franklin [16] as the young Dylan who passed himself off as the second coming of Woody Guthrie. Each section of the film not only has a different lead actor, but offers different looks that reflect various aspects of popular culture at the time.
