I'm getting a little tired of people going out of their way to ruin my appreciation for the original Batman: The Animated Series. That show was about as close to pure awesome as any syndicated cartoon has ever come. These days we can't seem to be rid of remakes, offshoots, and of course the anime inspired mega shits that is Teen Titans. It's like the dark masters at Warner Bros. intentionally created a show that was nothing but marketing hooks and gimmicks. In this full-length movie the creators gave up on any amount of subtlety regarding their raping of a popular art style for the purpose of landing a demographic and go so far as to base the story in Japan.
