In anticipation of Christopher Nolan's conclusion to his Batman trilogy, fans will have the opportunity to see both the Tumbler and the Bat-Pod up close and personal when The Dark Knight Tumbler Tour comes to Atlanta on Saturday, June 23.

Fans can head over to the Mall of Georgia at 3:00 p.m. and see/take pictures of Batman's vehicles up close, free of charge of course. Unfortunately, it doesn't look like the Batplane, which makes its debut in The Dark Knight Rises, will be available to see.

"Both the Tumbler and the Bat-Pod have served as high-powered modes of transportation for Batman - with the Tumbler first appearing in "Batman Begins" and the Bat-Pod being introduced in "The Dark Knight." They will both be featured in the hugely anticipated film, THE DARK KNIGHT RISES. Fans will get a firsthand look at the Tumbler and the Bat-Pod which is on a coast-to-coast tour, sponsored by Mountain Dew and IMAX."

As an added bonus, if you're one of the first 50 people in line who comes dressed as a character from The Dark Knight, you'll win passes to a special screening of The Dark Knight Rises!

Atlanta is just one of the many stops [1] on the tour's trip across North America. More information about the Tumbler Tour can be found on the official Facebook [2] and Twitter [3] pages.
