Detective Ash Rashid has been an officer for the Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department for many years. While being a detective he attends a law school so he can one day be a part of the juridical system but a case that hits close to home might end his career goals. When his niece's body is found in the home of a wealthy family, Ash must work out how she ended up there and why she was dead. During his investigation Ash slowly learns that the case of his niece's death is turning out to be more than he ever expected it to be and it now threatens other family members.
