Running Time: 100 minutes

They were a team of paleontologist based out of Hill City, South Dakota lead by Peter Larson that didn't have much but what they lacked in materials and money they had in skill. While out in the badlands of South Dakota, in 1990 the team finds a T-Rex fossil that startled them because at once they realized this was a discovery that's a once in a lifetime discovery. This T-Rex quickly becomes known as "Sue", the largest and most complete T-Rex that's ever been found. It's a discovery that not only will change the life of the ones that found Sue but it's one that will change the world, along with shock and stun the world. Just as quickly as the Black Hills Institute digs up Sue, the U.S. Government comes along to take her away from them. For the next 10 years the team and the world are drawn into a fight for the rights to Sue as well as trying to stay out of prison and in the end, well in the end you will just have to watch to learn.
