

I must admit that I was weary going into this one. I was not looking forward to it, but I knew I had to watch it. (You see, you have to watch movies that you don't want to sometimes in this industry). Obviously, this flick wasn't marketed toward the right audience, because everyone here at Shakefire was under the impression that this was a Nickelodeon-style kids movie.

Drumline has the intensity of Bring it On and the surprising dramatic quality of ave the Last Dance. Erase any doubts you have about this movie and give it a chance. I promise you will not be disappointed.
